Cervical screening
isn't a test for
cancer, it's a test
to help prevent cancer

Let's stop
cervical
cancer
together

Every day, two women die of cervical cancer in UK, yet nearly all cases of cervical cancer are preventable.

The best way to reduce your risk of cervical cancer is to attend your cervical screening appointment if you are invited - it can be uncomfortable, but not as painful as people might fear. The actual examination takes just a minute (the entire appointment takes just 10 minutes) and could save your life.

Through January, the Cancer Alliance is encouraging women and people with a cervix to significantly reduce their risk of developing cervical cancer - by booking their cervical screening appointment if they have missed it and being symptom aware. Further information can be found at:
